SUDDEN DEATH OF WESTERY MAN

Joseph H. Potter's Successful Career Ends—Problem in Street Watering—Effort to Widen and Improve Bay Street, Watch Hill, a Failure—Did Geo. E. Lurdick Lose $135?

The highway committee of the Westery town council, by causing the residential streets to be sprinkled with oil, has given to themselves a problem that is difficult to solve. When the dust was laid by oil there was no need for the watering carts on the old streets. This decreased the revenue of the man who owned the watering outfit to such a degree that it was a non-paying proposition, as he was paid by the subscription of those who owned or occupied property fronting on the streets watered. So the watering man gave notice Saturday that he must discontinue the service, as the only streets to be watered were the paved ones in the business section and the macadam in Broad street and the income would not pay expenses.

Those in the business section, while willing to pay for the watering of the streets as in the past, realize that the returns to the watering man are not ample, and openly charge the highway committee with a discrimination. They allege that if the committee relieves the residential section of paying the voluntary watering assessment, that the business section should not be ignored in that respect. If it is not possible to sprinkle oil on the residential streets, it is argued that the committee should provide for water sprinkling and thus remove the charge of alleged favoritism.

The result will probably be a special appropriation for sprinkling with water Broad street and the paved streets of Westery. It was so much said, Monday, still the dust nuisance was generally condemned. The section fronting the Public Library and Memorial building, between the trolley track and the curbing, was thoroughly wet down Monday afternoon through garden hose, although it is said that this was a violation of the rules of the water department.

Horace P. Dodge has just completed thirty-two years of continuous clerkship in the store of E. M. Dodge & Co., and in point of service is the oldest clerk in Westery. He is the son of Edward M. Dodge, who before establishing in business in Westery, was in business in Norwich for more than ten years.

Joseph H. Potter died suddenly at his summer cottage at Noyes beach, Monday morning. Mr. Potter has been blind for nearly twenty years, but aside from this affliction he was in excellent health. He was a custom to spend the winter in Florida and divided his time in the summer at his home in Westery and his cottage at the beach. He was born at Potter Hill October 20, 1823, son of Robert T. Potter, who was a cotton and wool manufacturer at Potter Hill and was four years old when his father died.

At the age of 13 he was sent to Bacon academy, Colchester, and afterward learned the cotton and wool manufacturing business at Potter Hill. When 18 he was a pupil in Solomon Carpenter's school in Westery, and a year later, while at this school, he took part in the suppression of the Durr rebellion.

Later he learned the machinist's trade at the shop of J. P. Stillman & Co. in Westery, and afterwards started in the foundry business under the firm name of Langworthy, Potter & Co. In 1845 he was the owner of a foundry, so-called, and later owned by C. B. Cottrell & Sons, in Pawcatuck. Stoves and ploughs were manufactured and Mr. Potter retired from the firm after two years.

In 1850, Mr. Potter bought a half interest in the business of J. S. Stillman & Co. in Westery, and in 1851 he was a partner in the business. In 1853 he admitted E. G. Champlin into partnership and carried on a large drug and patent medicine business, with a branch store at Mystic and another in Stonington.

Mr. Potter also engaged in the ready-made clothing business in High street, near Canal, Westery, in 1854. One of the greatest Potter-Langworthy block, which was completed about two years ago. In 1883, he retired, having been in the drug business seven years and the clothing business fourteen years.

In 1847, Mr. Potter married Rhoda Ann Langworthy of Hopkinton. She died February 21, 1915. Mr. Potter is survived by one daughter, Miss Anna Potter. Mr. Potter leaves a large estate. He was a director of the Washington National bank and trustee in the Westery Savings bank for thirty years. He and his wife in early life joined the First Hopkinton church. After permanently settling in Westery they united with the Seventh-day Baptist church.

There was an adjourned meeting of the Westery fire district, Monday, at the Pumpdon house, with Moderator Frank Larkin presiding. The committee appointed to secure the land owner's value of property on the west side of Bay street, with a view to purchase and improve the appearance of the Watch Hill water front, made report through George A. Pope, chairman. The lowest price that could be obtained for the land not including the buildings was $51,600. As the legislative act fixed the sum that could be expended for the purchase at $20,000, it was voted to accept the offer and discharge the committee. So the effort to widen and improve Bay street by the removal of the shacks on the west side is at an end for the present.

In order to meet the outstanding indebtedness of the fire district it was voted to levy a tax of 20 on $100, to take effect this year. It was also voted to have a fire hydrant located about midway between the Mrs. G. H. Babcock cottage and the summer residence of Park Painter.

Local Lacerations.

Arthur L. Perry, treasurer of the Washington Trust company, has returned from a trip to Seattle.

Miss Bessie Tirrell of South Boston is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Golden in Narragansett avenue.

Chief Engineer Stable of Pawcatuck will attend the annual convention of the State Firemen's league in New London today (Tuesday) and Wednesday.

While forced to acknowledge that George Edward Burdick of North Stonington was severely beaten in Westery Sunday afternoon, the police discredited Mr. Burdick's story that he had been robbed of $135. No arrests have been made.

The schooner Ruth arrived at Norank from New London Monday to load with junk from the famous yacht Palmer now being dismantled at the Palmer shipyard. The Ruth was formerly a yacht, too. She was built at Norank for Charles W. Watrous of New York, who was a native of New London.

COLCHESTER

Montville Team Defeats Independents 10 to 2—C. E. Union Service—Two Families Start on 23d Annual Outing.

The Independents were defeated Saturday afternoon 10-2 on the park by the Montville team. Score by innings: Montville 1 0 0 2 0 1 2 3 10; Independents 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 2. The umpires were O'Brien and Cavanaugh. The Montvilles were a very snappy team playing well together and their throwing to the bases was perfect as was also their fielding. Lazinski pitched a good game but his support was very poor. The Montville team were heavy hitters which quality the locals lacked. The Independents expect to play a return game in Fitchville next Saturday. Manager Strong has more good teams on his list for later games.

He placed a pillow under his head and ran for the doctor. Dr. Bard arrived shortly and stayed with the boy until he died about an hour after the shooting. Coroner Fish and Medical Examiner Newton arrived soon after and pronounced the boy dead.

He claimed to have bought the gun for another boy but after buying it the other boy shut him out of the house. He had no cartridges for the gun and thinks that the dead boy must have obtained them from somewhere. After further questioning into the details and a consultation, the coroner and doctors decided that the boy died from the effects of the wound caused by Miss H. The boy leaves his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Celestine Zampoli, a sister, Mrs. John Zampoli, and a brother Emanuel.
